

Newcrest 2018 Sustainability Report Released

Today Newcrest Mining Limited released its 2018 Sustainability Report. This is Newcrest's 17th Sustainability Report. "Sustainable mining delivers safe and profitable operations. It means that local communities are engaged and respected, that environmental impacts are assessed and managed, and that business decisions are made ethically and transparently", said Newcrest Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer, Sandeep Biswas.

During the reporting period, Newcrest updated its Company strategy to include sustainability in one of its five core pillars – Safety and Sustainability, People, Operating Performance, Technology and Innovation and Profitable Growth – each of which is essential to the next stage of the transformation journey.

As a member of the International Council on Mining and Metals ('ICMM'), Newcrest supports a public commitment to the ICMM's 10 sustainable development principles and position statements. The Company is striving to achieve improvements in areas such as climate change, water management and biodiversity.

In September 2018, Newcrest released a climate change statement which will guide the Company as it continues to build a sustainable and more resilient business.

Newcrest's updated Diversity and Inclusion Strategy includes new targets relating to the employment of women, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders, local community members and/or nationals in the countries in which it operates. The Company continues to develop and maintain strong relationships with its host communities. One way this is achieved is through significant, targeted investments in social performance programs that share the benefits of mining.

"Newcrest's membership of ICMM provides the opportunity to benchmark our performance, to learn from our global peer companies and to contribute our own experience in support of ICMM's efforts to shape global industry standards", said Mr Biswas.

Newcrest reports its sustainability performance based on the Global Reporting Initiative ('GRI') Standards and the GRI Mining and Metals Sector Supplement and continues to make strong progress in its journey to be Miner of Choice for its people, shareholders, host communities, partners and suppliers.
